

Rosaly DeMaios Roffman
Indiana, PA

Small Risky Poem: to celebrate Compassion and Wordlessness as the Divine

Be silent
as you enter silence

In your body
is your house

ceiling

frame

window

shelf

floor

wall

door

There is a place for stomach and brain

There are people who do not sully love by saying love

Think about this opening and honoring

Walking in silence I am reminded